

THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 9.

THE EVENING WORLD'S
Net paid bona fide actual daily

Average Circulation
is greater than the combined circulation of the

Evening Sun,
Mail and Express,
Evening Post,
Commercial Advertiser,
Evening Telegram.

GRATER NEW YORK.

The Brooklyn delegation made a good impression at Albany yesterday in the hearing of the bill to submit the question of the consolidation of the municipal governments to the test of a vote of the people.

It became evident during the proceedings that some of the Brooklyn officials who, in the face of unmistakable public sentiment, have been seemingly leaning towards the submission of the question to the popular vote, are playing fast and loose, or, as Senator Aspinwall expressed himself, "trying to ride two horses at once." Amendments were offered, the purpose of which was plainly embarrassment and delay.

The Consolidation League notified the Joint Legislative Committee that they wanted Senator Aspinwall's bill passed without change. The question is plain enough, and it is insisted that it be presented to the people in a proper and constitutional manner.

A WASHINGTON RUMOR.

There is a report from Washington that Senator Murphy is in perfect accord with Mr. Cleveland's policy to be pursued towards Mr. Cleveland's Administration, and that Senator Murphy will be found at all times an Administration Senator, ready to support the President's nominations, and opposed to any factional opposition over the spoils.

This is important, in view of the disposition manifested by Senator Hill to make or accept any overtures of a Democratic union on principles in this State, without regard to local issues or appointments to office. The story has a sort of confirmation in the fact that Senator Murphy and Mr. Croker had a protracted interview with the President before the Tammany chief took his departure for Tennessee.

Great confidence is felt that President Cleveland will appoint only fitting men to office, and any opposition to confirmation in the Senate would not seem likely to be successful.

TRUE DEMOCRACY.

Gov. Werts, of New Jersey, is a revelation to the politicians. Elected as a Democrat, he is so truly, so faithfully, so immovably Democratic that he will not allow the clearly expressed will of the people to be defeated by his cooperation or with his consent, even to benefit his own political organization.

The Mayor of Jersey City was elected by a good majority last November. He is a Republican. When the people chose him as their executive they knew that he would have the power as Mayor to appoint the Corporation Counsel and Attorney and a number of other important city officials. It is fair to conclude that they elected him on that very consideration.

The Democratic Legislature, having passed a partisan bill, taking the appointing power practically from the Mayor and giving it to a pre-existing Board of its own political complexion, Gov. Werts refuses his assent to the measure and returns it to the Legislature disapproved and accompanied by an admirably fair and calm statement of his reasons.

Gov. Werts is a true Democrat. He respects the will of the people, and upholds it first, last and all the time.

A CARE FOR A GRAND JURY.

In Plainfield, N. J., an electric light lineman has been killed through what seems to be a grossly careless way of doing business on the part of those in charge of the concern. The man was repairing circuits in different parts of the town. He was supposed to leave off work at half past five o'clock in the evening, at which hour the current is turned on by the Superintendent. But last Monday evening the lineman's watch was a little too slow, or the Superintendent's was a trifle too fast. When the wire the former was holding became charged his body stiffened out, sparks flew from him, blood gushed from his mouth, nose and ears and he fell to the ground, breaking his back.

Such a terrible accident ought never to have occurred. There certainly ought to be some certain method of ascertaining that all the repairs are off the wires before the current is turned on. It is criminal carelessness of human life to leave such a horrible slaughter to the risk of a few minutes' difference between two watches.

THE QUESTION SETTLED.

The United States cruiser Boston has on its decks a gallant Lieutenant named Young. The country has not heard much about this young Lieutenant until now, when he figures as an orator who sails from Kentucky, and, therefore, comes naturally by his gift of eloquence. A sort of farewell powwow having been given to Capt. Witte, of the Boston, at Honolulu, Lieut. Young was put forward by the brave but non-oratorical Commander to "respond" for his chief.

He did respond, wrapping both himself, the gallant Captain, the Boston, Minister Stevens and Honolulu round and round in the American flag, and nailing them all together to the Boston's highest mast. Moreover, he finally annexed Hawaii to the United States, and predicted that this act will herald in the time "when from the blue ramparts of the northern ice to the blistered ripples of the tropic seas, all men will share our pride in the flag of the constellated stars, and hail it as the token of a common citizenship."

What a pity that Lieut. Young, of old Kentucky, cannot be taken out of the navy and made a spell-binder.

ONLY A CROSS-EYED BABY.

A baby that starts out in life by being cross-eyed makes a very bad beginning indeed. Apart from the danger it has of growing up to be a mature case of "hard luck" sending a shiver through the superstitious person who encounters it at a moment when fortune seems to be otherwise propitious to the believer in omens, it has a path before it strewn with the usual mistakes that are as unwittingly made by folks whose eyes work.

A cross-eyed man may be really looking through the front window of a street-car when a fidgity and fussy old maid opposite will swear that he is ogling her, and he may be calling a small boy on a passing hay wagon a boogered liar when some Fitzsimmons-looking Goliath, who has been looking into a show-window, will insist that the insult has been aimed at him.

There are a great many thorns lying in the way of the feet of the cross-eyed baby. The Brooklyn girl who acquired a strabismic infant through the kindness of its mother on an "L" train knows this now. She wanted to give the baby a lift, but nobody in Brooklyn cared to own a cross-eyed baby. She brought it back to its mother in this city, but the mother could not be fooled into resuming her role as parent of a cross-eyed youngster. The oblique-eyed little one is in the hands, or arms, of the police, motherless, protectressless, etc.-less.

The future must have a tangled look to its interfering optics, but who knows but what the youngster will grow to what its picture printed in a patent-medicine advertisement or to win a $100,000 prize in a prize-contest by getting in a knockout blow while its victim is imagining that the knocker-out is interestedly scrutinizing a wart on the back of its own neck.

HER SUIT DISMISSED.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

LAST WORK OF THE FUND.

$2,000 Expended in Relieving Suffering Poor Families.

The following contributions have been received for "The Evening World" Temporary Relief Fund:

Previously acknowledged	$2,010.27
Miss A. E. S. Brooklyn	4.00
Miss A. E. S. Brooklyn	4.00
Miss A. E. S. Brooklyn	4.00
Grand total	$2,018.27

The final work of investigating cases that remained on the list at the close of the closing of "The Evening World" Temporary Relief Fund last Saturday is almost at an end, and only very few of this number could be considered undeserving of temporary assistance.

As in former instances, the uninvestigated cases have so far discovered to be repetitions of scenes of misery and gradual starvation, and only very few of this number could be considered undeserving of temporary assistance.

Port of the Fund's unexpended balance was used to relieve these cases, and what remains in the fund, and any that may be added to it, will be applied to those cases that are still on the list, now under investigation.

"The clearing-up" work has virtually ended, and "The Evening World" Temporary Relief Fund is now a matter of history. The cases collected yesterday were:

Mrs. Rose A. Cannon street; has a sick husband and two children; very destitute. Given $5.

Napoleon C. Second street; has sick wife and one child, and is out of employment. Given $5.

James P. B. Second street; sickly, and has sick wife and three starving children. Given $5.

Mrs. M. Cherry street; old couple, in frightful state of poverty. Given $5.

Mrs. M. Cherry street; has unemployed husband and five small children. Given $5.

Mrs. M. Cherry street; widow, with three children; very destitute. Given $5.

Mrs. M. Cherry street; old couple; last week buried the last of thirteen children. Given $5.

Mrs. C. West Forty-fourth street; has a consumptive husband and is destitute. Given $5.

Mrs. T. West Thirty-seventh street; has sick husband and five children. Given $5.

Mrs. M. West Forty-fourth street; has husband out of work and two children. Given $5.

Mrs. West Forty-fourth street; widow, sickly, alone and friendless. Given $5.

Mrs. West Forty-fourth street; widow, with three children. Given $5.

Mrs. Charles H. West Fifty-first street; has unemployed husband and crippled daughter. Given $5.

Mrs. H. West One Hundred and Third street; has unemployed husband and two children; very destitute. Given $5.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

Gen. Spinoza's Sister Will Get Nothing from the Estate.

Justice Patterson has dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Annie Douglas, the aged sister of General and Congressman Francis S. Pickens, to the effect that the probate of his will set aside on the ground of fraud for an accounting of the property left by him and to enjoin his widow, Elvira N. Spinoza, as executrix and trustee, from interfering with the property.

Gen. Spinoza died in Washington in April, 1891, leaving about $25,000. A large number of claims were presented against the estate, and the probate court, after a long and tedious hearing, set aside the will on the ground of fraud, and appointed a new executor, Mrs. Douglas, who has since taken care of the property.

His sister asserted that she did not contest the probate of the will, because she was given to understand that in that case she would receive a large amount of stock belonging to the estate. This promise was arranged but not carried out, she asserts, and her signature was used for the purpose of releasing all claims to her brother's estate.

The case was on the Supreme Court calendar for trial yesterday. Mrs. Douglas seemed much excited. Her counsel, however, Hamilton, Becker & Hamilton, contended that she did not wish them to prosecute the case, but that she wished to change her counsel.

Mrs. Douglas left the court-room after telling her counsel, Nathan, counsel for Gen. Spinoza, that she had decided to prosecute the case. He presented these facts to the court. Justice Patterson said he could not consider the case until the counsel of Mrs. Douglas, because of her absence he dismissed the complaint.

FOR THE BIG NAVAL PARADE.

Arrangements to Have It a Week Earlier than Planned.

City and Chamber of Commerce Rivals to Entertain Guests.

New Yorkers will have an opportunity of witnessing the great naval demonstration in the harbor in honor of the arrival of the foreign guests who are attending the coming ceremonies of the World's Fair at Chicago, a week earlier than was originally intended.

This is the result of the conference at Washington yesterday, between Secretary of the Navy Herbert and Admiral Gherardi. The date at which the ships of the North and South Atlantic Squadrons, together with the foreign contingents, are to arrive at Hampton Roads, was originally fixed for April 30, when a grand naval review and elaborate ceremonies were to take place.

It was found, however, that the law required that a review should be held in New York during the month of April, and the date decided upon would be too late to enable the foreign visitors to attend the coming ceremonies of the World's Fair at Chicago.

Accordingly, it was decided by the Secretary of the Navy to invite the foreign contingents to leave their vessels at Hampton Roads by April 17. This will give them a week at that place, and then sail for New York, arriving on April 25 or 26, which will give plenty of time for the entertainment of the visitors in this city, and for the guests from abroad to reach Chicago by July 1.

It has been decided that Admiral Gherardi, who is the foreign guest of honor, and his staff, will arrive in New York on the evening of that day, and will be met by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, who are willing to go deep into their pockets and furnish the money necessary for a fitting entertainment.

No definite arrangement has yet been made, but the matter is in the hands of a committee, which will be organized to-day, and will be in the hands of the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce.

It is estimated that there will be about fifty vessels in the fleet, which will sail from Hampton Roads and remain in New York harbor until the 15th of May. The fleet will include the Baltimore, New York, Chicago, Charleston, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Atlantic, Kearsarge, Bennington, Concord, Miantonomah, and others.

At the Brooklyn Navy Yard preparations are actively in progress for the coming review, and all the vessels there being overhauled and repaired. The city is also being prepared for the review, and the harbor is being cleared of obstructions.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.

The review will be a grand spectacle, and will be witnessed by thousands of people. The fleet will be reviewed by the Mayor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be a great honor to the city.